New London, Oct. 21 .- That Major Richard P. Twenty years of varied legal practice have taken Major Freeman into every state of the United States except Florida, and earned for him at home an extremely creditable reputation. As evidence of his standing it may be mentioned that within the last year the probate cases under Major Freemans charge have involved estates aggregating nearly $2,000,000 in value. He has been three times prosecuting attorney in the city court of New London, and has for years been accredited as an authority in criminal law.

Man of Affairs, Man Among Men. A man of affairs, Major Freeman has also been a man among men. In his fraternal associations, as past grand master of Brainerd lodge of Free Masons: as past exalted ruler and past district deputy of the Elks; in his various club memberships and years of rious club memberships, and years of service in national guard as regiment-al sergeant major during the Spanish war, and judge advocate since, on the war and judge advocate since, on the Connecticut brigade staff, he has gained the widest acquaintanceship and become very broadly known as a thoroughly democratic, fine manner and highly esteemed gentleman.

The state officers look upon this cor The state officers look upon this convention as a political event of some importance, in that the delegates come together full of confidence that the next general assembly will pass through its first stage a proposed constitutional amendment granting full suffrage to women. It is pointed out that four out of five parties have suffrage planks in their platform and that "there are enough individual members of the republican party in favor of votes for women to give an easy majority for the measure."

Sixty-two leagues are sending dele-oughness in canvassing and there will be few voters in his congressional constituency who will not have received before election day some appropriate information relative to the candidates and issues of the day, with especial appeal to the republican standpoint.

In Chester, Tuesday night, Major Freeman began his speaking tour, and with Robert L. Munger, of Ansonia, addressed a well attended rally. Both were very favorably received. Major from Maj wich and Mrs. Hepburn was elected president, only eight leagues were af-fillated with the state association, and the membership was under 400. This year scarcely a town is omitted in the list of those who have organiza-tions interested in the movement. In 1909-10 the income of the association was $250. This year the treasurer will report on the collection and disbursement of over $16,000 aside from

H. C. Russ Says His Company For-merly Spent $150,000 Abroad. In an article in the New York Press In an article in the New York Press upon the way American manufacturers are rushed with orders on account of the European war, H. C. Russ, formerly of this city, is noted as follows:

H. C. Russ of the Abbe Engineering company, No. 220 Broadway, said yesterday his company will look to this country to supply many of their articles which formerly came from abroad.

The Abbe company deals in crushing grinding and pulverizing material and in bolting cloth. Since the war the bolting cloth supply and porcelain jars used in grinding have been cut off. More than $150,000 was spent yearly by the Abbe company in importing these materials.

"Both of these articles can be manufactured here," said Russ. "At present we are turning down many orders for bolting cloth." Senator Brandegee Spoke.
